

FIRST-PARTY PROPERTY

Sophisticated Approach

We take a 360-degree approach to first-party property insurance to support our policyholders: from guidance in policy procurement to interpreting and understanding the coverage available to navigating notice and proof of loss submissions and representing policyholders in litigation if necessary.

Our team has substantial experience working with aggressive insurers and multimillion dollar towers of insurers attempting to deny or limit coverage for first-party property losses. We are not intimidated by insurance company tactics and are qualified in complex allocation, exhaustion, and business interruption calculations.

Navigating the claims process is critical to obtaining a full recovery for property losses. Skipping a step can jeopardize or eliminate coverage. We know how to avoid the traps. Our experienced attorneys jump in immediately after a loss to maximize and preserve coverage by strategizing claim presentation to the insurance companies, counseling policyholders on the insurance companies' claims investigation and loss-adjustment processes.

We work through on-site remediation and reconstruction to ensure effective documentation, and strategize proofs of loss and other supporting documentation submitted to the insurance companies.

When adversary proceedings cannot be avoided, we represent our clients in litigation against insurance companies to obtain payment of disputed claims and defend against declaratory judgment actions filed by insurance companies. We also represent policyholders in mediations, arbitrations, and appraisals.

After decades of exclusively representing policyholders, we have

The latest edition of Corporate Policyholder magazine covers insurance concerns stemming from the COVID-19 pandemic as well cyber security threats, risks from environmental liabilities, and purported gaps in commercial general liability policies.
