Is Injunctive Relief In Civil Enforcement Actions Subject To A Statute Of Limitations? Probably

September 1, 2020 | New York

David Slovick authored an article in the September 2020 edition of the Futures & Derivatives Law Report, “Is Injunctive Relief in Civil Enforcement Actions Subject to a Statute of Limitations? Probably,” regarding how 28 U.S.C.A. § 2462, the catch-all statute of limitations that governs Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) and Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) enforcement actions, should be applied to the various remedies typically sought by the government in those actions.
