Noncompetes: Michigan Decision Highlights Strategy of Cease and Desist Letters

By William A. Nolan

When your former employee is violating a noncompete, should you immediately involve the new employer? Learn about a recent Michigan decision and the strategic decisions businesses need to make in this situation.

The Telephone Consumer Protection Law: Recent Changes and Greater Litigation Risk

By Robert C. Folland

Companies are becoming more and more aware of the Telephone Consumer Protection Act (TCPA) as it has become a serious litigation risk across a variety of industries. Companies are facing greater risk now under the TCPA. That's because consumers are increasingly reachable only via wireless devices, which are more heavily regulated under the TCPA, and "robocalls" are an easy way for companies to reach many people, virtually for free. Learn more about recent changes to the law that will increase that risk.

Rule 30(b)(6) Depositions: Who Speaks for the Company?

By Robert G. Devetski and Eileen S. Pruitt

When your company gets sued, the "discovery" process of exchanging evidence begins. One discovery method full of peril is the Rule 30(b)(6) deposition of the company itself. Learn more about the potential pitfalls in preparing witnesses to testify.

Old Wine into New Wineskins? Michigan Court Decides what Constitutes "Use" of Wine under the Conversion Statute

By Timothy J. Abeska

Under a Michigan statute, a person damaged as a result of property being converted to another person's "own use" may recover treble damages, attorneys' fees, and costs. In a recent case of first impression, the Michigan Court of Appeals addressed the meaning of "own use" in the
