

New Economy New Rules: National STEM Mentoring Movement Lands In Indianapolis

DATE

December 5, 2014

Six months ago, President Obama announced that Indianapolis was one of just seven cities selected to receive funding and resources to launch a STEM mentoring program as part of the US2020 City Competition.

The TechPoint Foundation for Youth stepped up to serve as project manager with a guiding coalition of 40 founding partners. The US2020 plan is specifically focused on increasing STEM opportunities and STEM excitement for girls, underrepresented minorities, and children from low-income families.

Join us Dec. 5 for an update from some of the US2020 partners and an important discussion about the next phases of the program, especially how you and your company can get involved.

Featuring:

- David Becker, President and CEO, First Internet Bank
- Stephanie Bothun, Director of Education Initiatives, City of Indianapolis
- Carole Puls, Communications Business Partner, Roche Diagnostics
- Laura Dodds, Executive Director, TechPoint Foundation for Youth
