SPEAKERS

LaToya J.
Burrell, J.D.,
MBA

Join us for an interactive discussion exploring elimination of bias, equity, diversity, inclusion, and belonging. We will explore a common question asked when these uncomfortable, yet needed discussions, arise: What can I do for racial justice?

Living and working in Minneapolis when the social unrest sparked after George Floyd's death, LaToya Burrell was inspired to write her book, Be Bold: How to Prepare Your Heart and Mind for Racial Reconciliation. She believes that when we are willing to examine ourselves, listen, learn, and be bold, courageous conversations can begin and change will take place.

During this webinar, we will begin these courageous conversations. Attendees will examine the following questions:

- What can I do?
- How can I work toward a solution for equity, diversity, and inclusion?

- How can I be a change agent?

Elimination of bias is something that can make us all better and positively affect business and human interactions. As we enter this new year, how will you ensure that you are working toward a resolution?

1.0 hour CLE credit pending.
