

Josh Hollingsworth advises companies and their shareholders and senior executives on mergers and acquisitions, private equity, venture capital, emerging companies and corporate finance matters. Josh is an engaged partner with his clients — resolving problems in a practical, balanced manner with a view toward maximizing the long-term value proposition for his clients.

A consummate “deal guy,” Josh is at his best explaining sophisticated provisions to clients, crafting solutions to complex problems, and successfully closing complicated financing and acquisition transactions. By taking an active interest in learning about each client’s business and objectives, Josh is able to synthesize high-level issues into straightforward action items that make financial sense for his client’s bottom line and are consistent with their values.

Josh is a frequent speaker on corporate law topics and has been quoted in national publications including Fortune and Fast Company.
