

Chicago Sun-Times Hit With ULP Complaint

August 30, 2013 | Federal Laws And Legislation, Labor And Employment

In the midst of ongoing contract negotiations, the Chicago Newspaper Guild has filed a ULP charge against the Sun-Times newspaper group alleging that the company is using a non-union company to perform work reserved for bargaining unit employees. According to the union's website, it is alleging that the newspaper group's parent company shares ownership with the non-union entity which is performing the bargaining unit work. The newspaper group's parent company denies the allegations and maintains that it is acting within the scope of the law.

This dispute could be brought front and center in the near future as the union's website has indicated that it is requesting 10(j) injunctive relief.

For more on this story and the recent clashes between the company and the union see:

Chicago Business - "Sun-Times union files NLRB complaint "

Chicago Business Journal - "Guild representing laid-off Sun-Times photographers plans complaint to NLRB "

RELATED PRACTICE AREAS

Labor and Employment
Labor Relations

RELATED TOPICS

Federal Labor Relations Authority (FLRA)
Unfair Labor Practices