

Life Sciences Lunch – The Power Of Normal: Using Normal Controls In Breast Cancer Research

DATE

October 20, 2015

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month! IHIF and Barnes & Thornburg are pleased to present a special program highlighting important new research in the field. The program will feature speakers from the Susan G. Komen Tissue Bank, a valuable biorepository right here in Central Indiana containing high quality normal breast tissue and blood samples for research and leading researchers who have used these samples to investigate new diagnostic tools and therapies. Learn how to access the samples and why they play a critical role in the search for a cure.
