

UNIVERSITY AND PROFESSIONAL ATHLETICS

Game Plan

The level of scrutiny – and the need for transparency – in amateur, collegiate and professional athletics has never been higher. The issues that athletics faces are increasingly complex and addressing them is mission-critical at every level, which requires a focus on both day-to-day management as well as the profound educational, social, and cultural issues that lie at the heart of sport.

Barnes & Thornburg's University and Professional Athletics group is an experienced, laser-focused group of attorneys, former major athletics senior executives and administrators, and outside specialists, all organized to provide proactive consultation and solutions across the athletics business sector.

Our team brings decades of experience in the oversight, management, and delivery of advice and counsel to collegiate athletic departments, major and minor collegiate conferences, professional teams and leagues, amateur sports organizations, and the providers of the third-party services crucial to the business of sports – sponsors, advertisers, builders, financiers, media partners, fundraisers, licensors, licensees, and the health and wellness sector.

Our University and Professional Athletics attorneys regularly advise on matters involving Title IX compliance, name, image and likeness (NIL), strategic planning, and more. We advise universities of all sizes, with experience focused on those competing in Division I through Division III.

College Athletics

The firm's University and Professional Athletics group, in collaboration with our robust Higher Education group and full array of legal professionals, delivers a collaborative powerhouse developed to assist colleges and universities of all sizes. We assist institutions of higher
