February 24, 2017

David Spooner of the Washington, D.C., office was quoted in Mundo Economico, a business publication in Guatemala City. The paper ran a full-page interview with David about the impact of trade on Guatemala's apparel sector. While working in the U.S. government, David negotiated a portion of the United States' free trade agreement with Central America. David was also quoted in a Law360 article, "Trade Bar Needn't Sweat Over Rise In Commerce-Led Cases," about the impact of the Trump administration self-initiating trade remedy cases. David is quoted saying, "self-initiation wouldn't obviate the need for potential complainants to work closely with counsel."
