Indianapolis Star - "Let's Get On With Building New Judicial Center"

May 9, 2015 | Indianapolis

John Maley of the Indianapolis office was quoted in an Indianapolis Star editorial, "Let's get on with building new judicial center," published on May 9. The editorial discusses the proposed Criminal Justice Center in Indianapolis, and reflects on a 2005 IndyStar article in which John was quoted: "John Maley calls 200 E. Washington St. [site of most current judicial facilities] the most dangerous block in the city. 'The reality is someone is going to die in the building,' says Maley. The former president of the Indianapolis Bar Association and partner in the Barnes & Thornburg law firm is talking about Indianapolis' City-County Building, home to not only criminal courts but also government offices that handle everything from handing out marriage licenses to collecting tax payments."
