

Frank DeBorde has practiced as a bankruptcy and workout lawyer for more than three decades. He frequently conducts complex workouts and represents creditors in bankruptcy courts nationwide, and clients rely on him for his steadfastness and attention to detail.

Frank regularly represents creditors in state court, bankruptcy court and federal district court. His practice also includes representing creditors' committees in bankruptcy proceedings, handling contested foreclosures and representing lenders in lender liability cases.

Frank has been recognized by Chambers USA for his bankruptcy and restructuring work and is AV rated by Martindale-Hubbell, the highest peer rating for attorneys.

Prior to joining Barnes & Thornburg, Frank was a partner and chair of the creditors' rights and bankruptcy practice group at an AmLaw 200 law firm in Atlanta.
