

Noushan Nouredдини defends product liability and commercial litigation claims for manufacturers, distributors and sellers of medical devices, pharmaceuticals and consumer products. A team player at heart, Noushan is valued for her case management abilities and proven skill in analyzing and streamlining large-scale cases with many moving parts.

Noushan has substantial experience defending corporations in product liability, negligence and employment matters. She has handled and managed virtually all aspects of pretrial practice and is skilled in preparing and arguing motions, drafting pleadings and discovery, and taking and defending party, expert and fact witness depositions. Notably, Noushan has served as lead associate on trial teams and jury research projects.

Noushan focuses on ensuring the most effective course of action to protect the client's interests and brand. She has served on litigation teams that have defended single-plaintiff, complex multiparty claims, as well as federal multidistrict litigation.

Regardless of the scale of the lawsuit, Noushan seeks to strategically manage client resources at every turn and provide a cost-effective defense.

Prior to joining the firm, Noushan served as a member of the four-attorney trial team that obtained the first jury defense verdict in the country in a case arising under a whistleblower section of the Federal Railroad Safety Act. The Daily Journal selected this defense verdict as a "Top California Jury Verdict" of 2015.

Before attending law school, Noushan was a Fulbright Scholar in Cluj, Romania, where she conducted research on non-governmental organizations and taught a course on public policy at Babeş-Bolyai University.
