

Karen Schreiber represented clients in marriage dissolutions involving complex financial issues, closely held business interests, valuation and division of executive compensation, self-employment income, non-marital property claims, child support and spousal maintenance. Karen was valued by clients and colleagues alike for her deep experience and capabilities.

Karen worked with clients who had considerable and usually complicated finances. She is also a Rule 114 qualified mediator in Minnesota. With more than three decades of practice, Karen maintained an objective stance to even the most highly charged and emotional scenarios without losing focus on or compassion for her clients and their goals. Karen was known both inside and outside of the firm as a responsive problem-solver who sought to support cost-effective resolution, when possible, as opposed to costly litigation. However, if litigation was needed, Karen was also a skilled courtroom advocate for her clients.

Over the course of her career, Karen served as a trusted attorney representing family law clients with substantial and varied private business holdings in areas such as commercial real estate, technology, community banking, finance, manufacturing and a wide variety of personal service industries. She assisted public company business executives, including those from Fortune 100 companies, regarding executive compensation, vested and unvested stock options, restricted stock interests, deferred compensation, and a variety of other qualified and non-qualified employee benefit plans.

In addition, Karen assisted clients in navigating complicated tax issues and in developing strategies related to property division, child support and spousal maintenance in family law cases. She was skilled in marital and non-marital property claims in marriage dissolution matters and in prenuptial and postnuptial agreements, as well as in negotiating to settlement, and litigating when necessary, a substantial number of multimillion dollar and high-stakes marriage dissolution matters.

A fellow of the American Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers, Karen also serves as a moderated settlement conference referee and as a Hennepin
