Join us Jan. 3 for a discussion of strategies from a technological and a policy perspective regarding navigating these tricky and developing issues.

Description:

The issues of preservation and privacy are in the forefront of today's ever changing eDiscovery world. These issues are brought together in the context of employees using their personally owned smart phones and tablets for both work and personal use. This phenomena (called Bring Your Own Device or BYOD) presents a host of challenges for companies involved in potential litigation, wanting to maintain the security of confidential information and trade secrets, and dealing with day to day employment issues.
