The One Health concept recognizes that the health of people is connected to the health of animals and the environment. The goal of One Health is to encourage the collaborative efforts of multiple disciplines - working locally, nationally, and globally - to achieve the best health for people, animals, and our environment. Sixty percent of infectious diseases in people are spread from animals and the interactions between the points of this triad are changing more rapidly and dynamically than ever before. Our panel will discuss how looking at the bigger picture will shape drug development and impact innovation and research efforts going forward.
